Arno Waschkuhn

Politisches System Liechtensteins

Summary

The principality of Liechtenstein is characterized by a mixed constitution, a multiple system of checks and balances, a high degree of political stability and economic prosperity. This study analyses the competences and role of the prince, the performance of the four political parties, the dominance of the government and the weakness of parliament, the profile of interest groups, and some aspects of the community power and political culture.